

Be A Better Grandparent

Do you have trouble hearing your grandchildren's voices? Many grandparents do. That's because about one in three people over 65 have some degree of hearing loss; one in six of the "baby boomer" generation have hearing loss due to growing up with loud music. Many of these people are unaware of their hearing loss or deny they have a hearing problem.

Don't let your hearing be an issue when it comes to your grandkids. At the Place for Better Hearing, we can examine your ears and perform a complete diagnostic hearing evaluation. Bring your spouse, a family member, or friend along for the appointment. We will review the test results with you and provide recommendations. If hearing aids are indicated, we can provide you with information about various hearing aid styles and determine what would best fit your lifestyle and your hearing loss needs. We'll review prices and payment options. We accept most insurance plans and will file insurance claims for you. Low monthly payments through SoundChoice can make it affordable with 0% financing options.

At the Place for Better Hearing, we offer Destiny hearing aids which feature advanced technology that virtually eliminates buzzing, screeching, and discomfort by adapting to the sounds around you. They work so well and automatically, that many patients forget they're wearing hearing aids. With the help of Destiny digital hearing instruments, you can rediscover the joy in the little things, the day-to-day sounds that you've been missing.

Destiny hearing aids from Starkey have helped other grandparents reconnect with their grandkids. Remember, special moments with grandchildren only happen once.

Audiologists Laurie DeWine and Stefanie Godbey can help you hear better with Destiny. At The Place for Better Hearing, we want to make sure your hearing is at its best when you're caring for your grandchildren. Hearing well is an important element in child safety. With Destiny hearing aids, there's no longer any excuse for not being able to hear well. Experience Destiny hearing aids for yourself.
